

INDIAN CONSTRUCTION WORKERS

It is my immense pleasure to write an article about construction workers in our country. A good percentage of India's population lies in construction industry. That's what brought me to write an article about those workers

I could see them working in their site from dusk to dawn. The effort made by them for constructing a building is too much. Most of the workers in this sector are poor and they work at a minimum wage to earn their living.

The major problem faced by them is that most of them are illiterate and it is easy for the supervisors to cheat them.

From their work I understood that they use a lot of skill for completing their work on time. They have a lot of creative skill which they use for the perfection of their work. They are too creative so they could build a beautiful building.

Time management is another quality maintained by them. Once they start doing work, they will be punctual and see that they finish the task for the day on time. The concrete mixtures and all will be made carefully with adequate materials needed.

The most amazing thing is their team work. It is really appreciative. Their co-ordination is amazing. Once if we go to any of these sites we will be amused to see them working with tools and machines so faster . As the technology has grown now, it has helped them well . They could now do more work in less time.

All these skills along with their hardwork results big buildings in our country. It is their sweat and toil that have resulted the existence of amazing building structures in our country and we should always be grateful to them and provide due respect to all these great people.

AJIN MITHRA
G.H.S.S VAYALA
● KADAKKAL