

Extraordinary Day

It is a story of a person that I had met at the Kozhikode Beach. For an hour I just sat on the sand and looked toward the sun and the sea. From the beach I had refresh my mind.

On the seashore there was a variety of delicious food items. They were mouth watering items. It was on evening and I saw a person who was selling a variety of delicious items. There were many fruits items that were kept in the vinegar. They were really mouth watering items. I buyed some mangoes and I started to eat. At the time he is just looking at me. while, I liked to know about him and I just started to speak with him and collected more information about him.

His name is Aron, and he is living near to the kozhikode beach. For about six years he did this has his business. From the profit of this small business they were living. I asked to him that "Do you have any dream with this money, what are you doing with this money". He had a smile on his face and answered very sweetly "There will not be much profit from this small business, but I am happy with it, from the profit of it I will look after my family". Then, I again picked some items from that shop and started to eat. I again asked to him that "whether we need any skill for doing this kind of business."

With a small smile he answered to me that "For doing any business we need some skills".

He funnily said an example to me that "while I am talking to you I try to manage the other customers for a skilled person can only do this".

He is really a kind heart and a lovely person. He had a simple lifestyle and a simple mind.

While I am living from there he gave me an advice that "Brother, study well, score good mark and pursue a good job". He really motivated me. I gave him some extra money and said good bye to that lovely person.

The time was too late and I back to my home with a beautiful memory. It was really an extraordinary day in my life.
